Forecast For Northeast England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Friday 21 May 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Chilly winds with occasional rain tonight. Sunny intervals on Saturday.

This Evening and Tonight:
Staying cloudy and windy overnight, with further rain at times. Rain will be occasionally heavy at first, but become increasingly confined to eastern parts towards dawn. Strong northerly winds will develop, with coastal gales for a time. Feeling chilly. Minimum temperature 4 deg C (39 deg F).

Saturday:
Sunny spells will develop as cloud breaks. Some afternoon showers are likely. Winds will ease and become westerly. Mainly dry and clear overnight, with a touch of ground frost possible. Maximum temperature 12 deg C (54 deg F).

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
Sunshine and Showers on Sunday, with strengthening winds, then a band of heavy rain Sunday by evening. Sunny spells and showers on Monday and Tuesday, some heavy. Feeling cool throughout.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.